Learn French in French-speaking Belgium!
Do you want to learn French or polish your skills?

Come to French-speaking Belgium to take immersive French courses!
The Wallonia-Brussels Federation higher education institutions are French-speaking.
Although many Master’s degrees are partially or completely taught in English, the language of teaching and the student environment is still mainly French.

Come and study in French-speaking Belgium, it’s the ideal opportunity to enhance your knowledge of the French language while developing every day in the cosmopolitan world of Belgium!

French-speaking Belgium = The Wallonia-Brussels Federation
The Wallonia-Brussels Federation is part of the Kingdom of Belgium, a federal state of Western Europe. Belgium is one of the six founding countries of the European Union. Its capital city, Brussels, is home to the European Union’s major institutions (the European Parliament, the Council of the European Union and the European Commission).
GOOD REASONS TO LEARN FRENCH

French is the fifth most-spoken language in the world, after Chinese, English, Spanish and Arabic. It is also taught in every country in the world. It represents a medium for cross-cultural exchanges, the free flow of ideas and the consolidation of interests on an international stage. It constitutes a pathway to future-facing jobs in the audiovisual and digital sectors, as well as a driver of economic growth and development.

Source: Organisation internationale de la Francophonie

French is the second most-learnt language in the world, after English.

French is the world’s third business language.

French is the internet’s fourth language.

French is the fifth most-spoken language in the world, with over 300 million speakers.

125 million people are currently learning French in 36 countries and territories.

French is one of the official languages for 32 states and governments and in most international organisations.
THE FRENCH LANGUAGE IS...

The other language of international relations
French is one of the official languages of the UN, NATO, the European Union, UNESCO, the OECD, the International Olympic Committee and the International Committee of the Red Cross.

The language of the internet
More and more study programmes in French are available online (MOOCs). These resources are accessible to everyone, anytime, anywhere in the world. These online courses are revolutionising formal education and enable information to spread more broadly, whether it is cultural, scientific, literary, etc.

The language of communication and culture
French is very widely used in the media, cultural activities and in literature. Speaking French means having access, in their original version, to the great texts of French and French-speaking literature as well as film and music. Studies on the cultural industry sector reveal that French-speaking countries have a strong presence in the global trade of cultural products, and in the audio-visual and publishing field, for example. French is also the language of international media: TV5MONDE, Euronews, BBC News, the Chinese channel CGTN and RT in Russia.

A language to learn other languages
Learning French can make it easier to learn other romance languages such as Spanish, Italian, Portuguese or Romanian.
LEVEL OF FRENCH REQUIRED TO ENROL ON A MASTER’S OR A DOCTORATE

Are you considering a Master’s or Doctoral degree in French, in your chosen field?

If so (to enrol on a Master’s degree) your French will need to be at B2 (upper intermediate) level, as defined by the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).

The following do not need to demonstrate their level of French:
· Students whose mother tongue is French.
· Nationals of countries whose official language is French.
· Students who have acquired at least 45 credits in a course taught in French.
· Students applying for courses taught completely in English.

In all other cases, students must show they have passed a standardised test: DALF (B2), DELF (B2), TEF (level 4) or TCF (B2).

Proficiency in French is generally not required for a Doctorate as the thesis may be written in English. However, every higher education institution is free to set its own admissions criteria. It is therefore recommended to contact the admissions service at your chosen institution.

Level required = independent user (B2)

Please note, there are two exceptions:
· Students wishing to sit exams for teacher-training Master’s programmes or the AESS (upper secondary school teaching qualification) must first pass a French language proficiency test. To pass this test, students must demonstrate C1 level written and spoken communication skills in French, as defined by the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages (CEFR).

· Students wishing to sit exams for the preparatory study year leading to a teacher-training Master’s or an upper secondary school teaching qualification (AESS) in modern languages and literature must demonstrate B2 Level language skills, as defined by the CEFR.
Are you considering studying for a Master’s or Doctorate in English, in your chosen field?

In that case, speaking French is not essential. Higher education institutions in the Wallonia-Brussels Federation are French-speaking, but a significant number of Master’s degrees are delivered either partially or entirely in English.

Doctoral studies and research may be carried out in English. However, you can make the most of your time studying in French-speaking Belgium by expanding your linguistic horizons and learning French!

Please contact your chosen higher education institution directly to find out more about exam and subscription deadlines.
 OVERVIEW OF THE DIRECTORY

No matter how long your stay in Brussels or Wallonia, whether you are beginning to learn French or you want to brush up on a few specific areas, Belgium’s higher education institutions are ready to help you find the course which suits you best!

Abbreviations used in the directory

ASBL: Association Sans But Lucratif (non-profit organisation)

CERCL: Common European Framework of Reference for Languages
The CEFR is a document that was published by the Council of Europe in 2001, which defines the levels of skills in a foreign language based on knowledge in different fields of expertise. These levels are now the reference framework in language learning and teaching in many countries.
Basic user

A1 Can understand and use familiar everyday expressions and very basic phrases aimed at the satisfaction of needs of a concrete type. Can introduce him/herself and others and can ask and answer questions about personal details such as where he/she lives, people he/she knows and things he/she has. Can interact in a simple way provided the other person talks slowly and clearly and is prepared to help.

A2 Can understand sentences and frequently used expressions related to areas of most immediate relevance (e.g. very basic personal and family information, shopping, local geography, employment). Can communicate in simple and routine tasks requiring a simple and direct exchange of information on unfamiliar and routine matters. Can describe in simple terms aspects of his/her background, immediate environment and matters in areas of immediate need.

Independent user

B1 Can understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure, etc. Can deal with most situations likely to arise whilst travelling in an area where the language is spoken. Can produce simple connected text on topics which are familiar or of personal interest. Can describe experiences and events, dreams, hopes & ambitions and briefly give reasons and explanations for opinions and plans.

B2 Can understand the main ideas of complex text on both concrete and abstract topics, including technical discussions in his/her field of specialisation. Can interact with a degree of fluency and spontaneity that makes regular interaction with native speakers quite possible without strain for either party. Can produce clear, detailed text on a wide range of subjects and explain a viewpoint on a topical issue giving the advantages and disadvantages of various options.

Proficient user

C1 Can understand a wide range of demanding, longer texts, and recognise implicit meaning. Can express him/herself fluently and spontaneously without much obvious searching for expressions. Can use language flexibly and effectively for social, academic and professional purposes. Can produce clear, well-structured, detailed text on complex subjects, showing controlled use of organisational patterns, connectors and cohesive devices.

C2 Can understand with ease virtually everything heard or read. Can summarise information from different spoken and written sources, reconstructing arguments and accounts in a coherent presentation. Can express him/herself spontaneously, very fluently and precisely, differentiating finer shades of meaning even in more complex situations.

ECTS: European Credit Transfer System

In the European credit transfer system, each activity is measured quantitatively, in units known as ECTS credits. These credits operate the same way across Europe. Credits are expressed as a number which represents the workload required for learning: attending classes, assignments, seminars, internships, research, study time, exams, etc.

FFL: French as a Foreign Language

When we talk about ‘General FFL lessons’, these are French lessons for foreign language speakers, working on the five language skills (verbal and written understanding, continuous verbal expression, verbal expression in conversation and written expression). Please note, however, that higher education institutions offer a very varied range of FFL classes, from the perspective of methodology. Some approaches focus on communication, action, or interaction. Others emphasise culture, conversation, or real-life situations. They may use audiovisual resources or authentic documents, etc.

With its rich history of academic and linguistic achievement, French-speaking Belgium will make you love the French language!
